SETTING UP

Your Account For The First Time

1. For new UTRADE clients, you will be prompted to change your password upon entering the UTRADE platform for the first time.
2. Next, there will be various Terms & Conditions for you to read and accept, most of which will only appear once upon your first login. The “Terms of Use of UTRADE portfolio” however, will appear each time you login.
3. Complete a one-time acceptance of the Exchange Agreement for each market to gain access to the price feed. To do that, you may go to the “Account” page. Select “Account Details” and follow the instructions under the “My acceptance of Exchange Agreement” column to accept.
4. To get SGX Market Depth or live prices for US or HKEX Trading, you may:
 - I. Use your reward points to subscribe for these services under the “Rewards” page.
 - II. Pay for these services and complete the Subscription Services Form.

WIDGETS

Throughout the UTRADE Web Platform, you will see cards like the one above. These are called widgets.

These widgets all have a few similar characteristics, namely:

1. Name of the Widget
2. Widget Action Buttons, including
 - Refresh – Allows you to refresh the data within the widget.
 - Maximize – Allows you to maximize the size of the widget.
 - Export – Allows you to export the data within the widget.
 - Print – Allows you to print out the data within the widget.
 - Other buttons that are related to the widget itself and will be explained later.
3. For widgets in pop-up windows and in My Workspace, you can adjust the size of the widget by pulling the sides of the widgets.

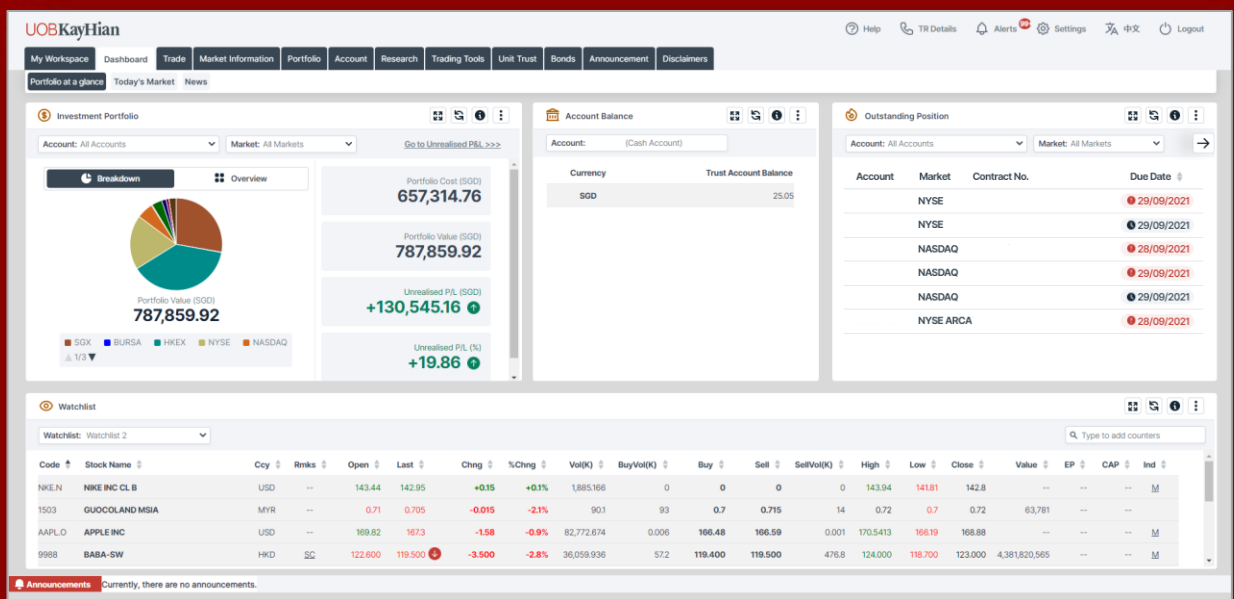

DASHBOARD

The dashboard is the default first page that you will see upon entering the platform. It allows you to view key pieces of information about your account at a glance.

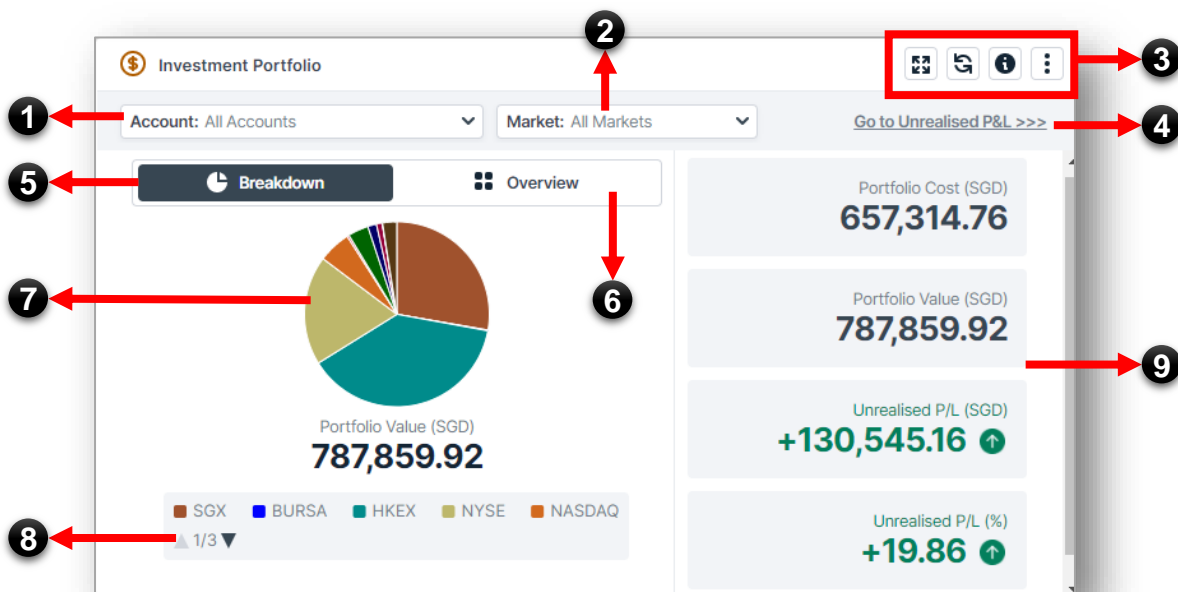

Information such as:

- A pie chart breakdown of your Investment Equity Portfolio
- Account Balance
- Unsettled Transactions
- Watchlist
- Market Indices
- Stock Data
- Market News

Explaining The Different Colour Indicators

The screenshot displays the UOB KayHian trading interface. The top navigation bar includes links for My Workspace, Dashboard, Trade, Market Information, Portfolio, Account, Research, Trading Tools, Unit Trust, Bonds, Announcement, and Disclaimers. Below this, a sub-navigation bar shows Top Value, Top Gainer, Top Loser, Top Gainer %, Top Loser %, Top Volume, Prices, and Market Indices. The main content area is titled 'Top Volume' and shows a table of market data for the SGX market. The table columns include Code, Stock Name, Rmks, Ccy, Open, Last, Chng, %Chng, Vol(K), Buy, BuyVol(K), Sell, SellVol(K), High, Low, Close, Value, EP, CAP, and Ind. The 'Last' price column uses green boxes for increases and red boxes for decreases. The '%Chng' column uses green for positive and red for negative changes. The 'Vol(K)' column uses yellow boxes to indicate volume changes. The 'High' and 'Low' columns also use green and red boxes to indicate price movements. The 'Value' column uses yellow boxes to indicate value changes. The 'EP' column uses red boxes to indicate negative earnings per share. The 'CAP' column uses yellow boxes to indicate capital changes. The 'Ind' column uses green boxes to indicate positive indicators.

EMERGING MARKETS-Asian currencies rise on hopes of Ukraine summit

"Thailand bails fingers near five-month high" "Thailand economy returns to growth in Q4" "S.Korean won rises on higher exports" "Singapore shares edge higher after FY22 budget By Archidima Iyer Feb 21 (Reuters) - Asian currencies edged higher on Monday, with the Thai baht leading the pack as risk appetite got a boost on plans by U.S. President Joe Biden and Russia's Vladimir Putin to hold a summit on the Ukraine crisis. The Philippines peso and the Singaporean dollar were up about 0.1% each, the South Korean won appreciated 0.2% on its third straight day of gains, while the Malaysian ringgit traded flat. The office of French President Emmanuel Macron said in a statement on Monday he had pitched to both Biden and Putin a summit over "security and strategic stability in Europe." "The White House said Biden had accepted the meeting "in principle" but only "if an invasion hasn't happened." Investors see the summit as a glimmer of hope out of the crisis that has global markets rattled over the past few weeks. However, risk-off sentiment still lingered as market players were cautious on any further developments between both countries, along with the prospect of an aggressive tightening of policy rates by the U.S. Federal Reserve. Heightened geopolitical risks combined with rising rampant inflationary concerns have added to the pressure on Asian markets in recent weeks. "When a diplomatic solution to Ukraine is (hopefully) eventually reached, U.S. yields should resume their upward trend and help pull the dollar higher as well," analysts from Brown Brothers Hartman said in a research note. The dollar is likely to get a boost if Russia-Ukraine tensions persist this week, the analysts added. In Asia, the Thai baht rose about 0.2%, lingering near its five-month high, after Southeast Asia's second largest economy reported a higher-than-expected GDP growth for the fourth quarter on the back of higher exports and domestic activity picking up. The South Korean won also climbed about 0.1% after the Asian trade bellwether's exports surged for the first 20 days in February driven by higher outdoor shipments of semiconductors and petroleum products. The Chinese yuan rose marginally after the central bank kept its one-year and five-year loan prime rates steady. Emerging Asian equities were under pressure, with the Philippines benchmark falling the most, as much as 3.2% in its third consecutive session of losses. Others like Malaysian shares, stocks in Thailand and Taiwanese equities were down in the range of 0.1% and 0.8%. Meanwhile, Singaporean equities rose slightly, helped by its financial year budget for 2022 announcement on Friday, where the fiscal deficit for FY2021 was pegged at 0.9%. Shares in Indonesia also gained about 0.2%.
